

Rabbit Resistant Plants

Rabbits will gnaw on new, tender growth of a large variety of annuals, perennials and ornamental shrubs. They can also do considerable damage to trees and shrubs, preferring to gnaw on the smooth bark of younger specimens. Rabbits can damage trees and shrubs even in winter months. Rabbits tend to avoid plants with strong fragrance and fuzzy textures. Although no plant is truly rabbit proof, the following is a list of plants that rabbits tend to avoid.

Annuals

Calendula	Lobelia	Nicotiana	Snapdragon
Lantana	Marigold	Rudebeckia	Stock
			Zinnia

Groundcover

Ajuga species (Shade)	Fragaria species	Gaultheria species
Arctostaphylos	Galium odoratum	Rubus species

Herbs

Allium	Melissa officinalis	Origanum vulgare	Santolina species
Hyssopus officinalis	Mentha species	Rosmarinus officinalis	Teucrium chamaedrys
Lavandula species	Nepeta species	Salvia officinalis	Thymus species

Ornamental Grasses

Liroipe (Shade)	Ophiopogon (Shade)
-----------------	--------------------	--	--

Perennials / Bulbs

Achillea species	Chrysanthemum	Ferns (Shade)	Lychnis Coronaria
Alchemilla mollis	Cerastium	Gaillardia species	Monarda
Allium	Cimicifuga (Shade)	Geum	Mahonia (Shade)
Aquilegia species	Coreopsis species	Geranium species	Penstemon species
Asarum	Cyclamen sp.	Helleborus species	Perovskia
Asclepias tuberosa	Delphinium	Hemerocallis species	Phlox
Astilbe species	Dicentra species	Heuchera species	Phygelius
Acanthus species	Digitalis	Iberis	Sedum species
Anemone species	Erica species	Iris	Sisyrinchium species
Artemesia	Eryngium species	Kniphofia species	Stachys byzantine
Bergenia species	Epimedium sp. (Shade)	Leucanthemum	Veronica
Campanula species	Euphorbia species	Linum	Vinca
			Viola species

Shrubs

Buddleia species	Cotoneaster species	Deutzia	Ilex species
Buxus species	Cistus species	Euonymus species	Lonicera species
Ceanothus gloriosus	Daphne species	Hibiscus / Syriacus	Taxus species

Vegetables

Artichoke	Leek	Potato	Summer Squash
Asparagus	Onion	Rhubarb	Tomato

Revised 8/19/24